The scheme in Figure S1.R contains an additional diode (labeled as RD on the scheme) connected in parallel to the solenoid valve. FR107 diode has been used in the proposed scheme. The purpose of the diode is to protect the circuit from the kick-back current created by inductive load that may interfere with the operation of some USB ports and cause interruptions in communications of the Arduino board with the computer over COM ports.